Mr. George C. Pratt, Vice-President,
Electrical Research Products, Inc.,
7046 Hollywood Boulevard,
Los Angeles, California.

Dear Mr. Pratt:

I am taking the liberty of writing you regarding a personal matter upon which you may be able to give me a little advice.

One of my sons, Winfield, who has just graduated in engineering, is desirous, if possible, of getting connected with one of the larger industries. He realizes, as I do, how difficult such a desire is of accomplishment under the present depressed conditions.

Although he has taken engineering, he is not necessarily determined to follow that profession, but has felt that engineering training is generally very helpful for any kind of occupation. Although he has not specialized in electrical work, he has had considerable training in that line.

He is 24 years of age, has spent about $2\frac{1}{2}$ years in Europe, speaks German fluently, studied Spanish for three years some time ago, though he does not speak it readily, has a keen mind, has initiative, is industrious, willing, and thoroughly dependable.

He feels that he would be willing to start at anything provided there would be opportunities for advancement if he made good. He would consider employment in other countries as well as this. He makes friends and holds them.

Now, I am wondering if you could advise me if there is any possibility of an opening in any field connected with your company or any other with which you may be familiar either in the United States or abroad. However, I would not desire any special consideration in his behalf.

Thanking you in advance for any information you may be able to give me and for imposing upon your time,
I am, with sincere esteem,

Very truly yours,
